
Coronado

SOFAS

1966

Afra & Tobia Scarpa

Description

The evergreen Coronado sofa is the quintessential symbol of relaxation. Its comfort is guaranteed by a suspension system made from harmonic steel bands inserted into the structure of the back. The product's aesthetics, conceived as a trait-d'union between period furniture and the growing desire for modernity, has decreed its success over time. Its revolutionary personality in terms of design and of materials offers a prime example of B&B Italia's industrial culture. First launched in 1966, Coronado emerged from the idea of matching an iron frame with the revolutionary technology of cold moulded polyurethane foam, which B&B Italia had introduced to the furnishing sector. In addition to the intrinsic innovations that Coronado presented in terms of design, materials and technologies, the design also optimised production times, while also reflecting the company's international calling. Besides the sofa, the collection also includes an armchair. The height of the feet from ground is 3 cm (1 1/8").

Technical information

Innenrahmen

Stahlrohre und -profile

Innenrahmen Füllung

kalt elastischer Polyurethanschaum, Futter aus Polyesterfaser

Sitz- und Armlehnekissen Füllung

geformtes Polyurethan verschiedener Dichten, Polyesterfaser

Rückenkissen Füllung

geformtes Polyurethan, Futter aus Polyesterfaser

Füße

Material thermoplastisch

Bezug

Stoff oder Leder

Technical drawings

