1. 'CAMALEONDA' SOFA
by Mario Bellini,
for B&B Italia

Mario Bellini designed the 'Camaleonda' 50 years ago, yet the modular sofa looks utterly contemporary, and now B&B Italia is reissuing it with a sustainable spin. Keeping the aesthetic of the 1970 original, the company redeveloped the sofa from the inside. Made of recycled and recyclable materials, the inner structure is easy to take apart at the end of the sofa's life, while the feet are in FSC-certified beech. Ever reconfigurable, the sofa is, of all Bellini's pieces, 'perhaps the one that better represents a sense of freedom', he says. Price on request, beitalia.com

2. 'FRAME' SIDEBOARD
by Carlo Colombo,
for Giorgetti

This sideboard features maple wood and saddle leather combined in a linear, sleek design. Two removable shelves are available in marble (Calacatta Oro, Portoro or Zerbinò) or saddle leather and feature LED lighting, with a sensor switch. There's also a grey crystal shelf. The sideboard is a new addition to a collection that includes a bed, a mirror and storage solutions, all characterised by the same grey hues and sleek saddle leather. £20,395, giorgetti.com

3. 'REPRISE' CHAIR
by Norm Architects,
for L'Ercolani

To mark its centenary, Ercol launched a new brand paying tribute to company founder Lucian Ercolani and his timeless design legacy, while also looking to the future. Called L'Ercolani, it features some of his archive designs as well as new pieces by designers such as Lars Beller Fjetland and Tomoko Azumi. Norm Architects' 'Reprise' chair reflects its creators' modernist style and Scandinavian roots. It's available in ash and walnut, with additional white and black painted versions, and with leather or fabric upholstered seat options. From £1,440, lercolani.com

4. 'PRISME COLOUR' COFFEE AND SIDE TABLES
by Fendi Casa

Fendi Casa's new collection combines minimal lines with a rich colour and material palette. The Italian house applies the same approach to furniture as it does to fashion: pieces are expertly made in Italy, sophisticated and modern. As well as a modular sofa with leather and marble details, the new offering includes the 'Prisme Colour' tables, an update of the enigmatic 'Prisme' range. With back-painted glass, the table tops come in garnet red, ultramarine blue, tea green, saffron, paprika orange and forest green (pictured). £5,900, luxurylivinggroup.com
